Mr. Tessier is responsible for the satisfactory completion of many of the water-resources, solid waste, and hazardous waste projects completed by the Palm Beach office. He provides hydrogeologic support services and participates in the design and planning of site-specific and regional groundwater resource-development, resource-management, and contamination studies and supervises the design and implementation of modeling programs throughout the U.S.

Mr. Tessier participated in several projects using remote sensing techniques. While attending Brown University full-time, he designed experiments which formed the basis for selection of the robot camera for NASA's unmanned Lander program. He also constructed the first global representation of Mars based upon remotely-sensed data from the Mars-Mariner program. While serving as special consultant to Grumman Ecosystems, he participated in the synthesis and presentation of airborne magnetic data from northern Greenland.

Mr. Tessier has been involved in many studies relating to all aspects of hydrogeology and groundwater contamination. He has participated in or directed regional water-resources studies in Florida, New York, North Carolina, and New Jersey, waste-management studies in New York, Florida, and Wyoming, site-specific groundwater contamination studies in Connecticut, Georgia, Ohio, and Florida, and injection-well studies in Florida. He has provided technical guidance in the design of many capture systems for the control of landfill leachate and hazardous waste plumes. These activities include aquifer testing, hydrologic analysis, computer modeling, and well and multi-well system design.

After 32 years in the firm's south Florida office, Mr. Tessier has a detailed knowledge of Florida hydrogeology, gained from the diverse range of projects completed to date. In the Southeast Region, he provides hydrogeologic support services and participates in the design and planning of site-specific and regional groundwater resource-development, resource-management, and contamination studies and supervises the design and implementation of modeling programs.

West Palm Beach, FL 33411

Dear Bonnie:

On behalf of the Arthur R. Marshall Foundation, I would like to nominate Advisory Board Member Allan Trefry as a candidate to serve on the Groundwater and Natural Resources Protection Board (GNRPB).

We believe Mr. Trefry's professional experience as the Environmental Director for the Resources Protection Division of Palm Beach County ERM more than qualifies him to serve on the board. Allan also remains extremely active with the Marshall Foundation and other local non-profits including Loggerhead Marine Life Center and Grassy Waters Preserve to name a few. I'm sure each organization values his input on topics ranging from Sea Turtle Protection to Prohibited Invasive Vegetation as much as we do.

Allan most recently completed the Marshall Foundation's 78 mile River of Grass Canoe expedition which highlighted the water flow between Lake Okeechobee and the City of West Palm Beach. We are delighted to share his expertise with the Groundwater and Natural Resources Protection Board.

Should you need any additional information please feel free to contact me at 561-805-8733 or Josette@artmarshall.com
